Research confirms that there are some genuine ways you can become self-motivated, even when the going gets tough. Here is a proven way to improve your self-motivation To stay motivated, set specific and challenging goals : Goals should be measurable and sufficiently challenging and not broad and general. For example, instead of a setting a goal of studying more diligently in the present class, set a goal of studying minimum X hours everyday for next Y months. Once you are able to achieve this, you can make your goal more and more difficult. Always remember this simple aphorism "goals are like dreams with deadlines" And off course once you have achieved the goal, celebrate and ask your parents for the appropriate gift :-)	  How to Change Your Thinking &amp; become mor... ★★★★★ 4.5 Free    Hyperthinking: improve your day to day c... ★★★★★ 4.5 Free
